٠.	Communication with Wrecked Vessels.
	Mr. Wilcox. Collector of Customs, writes from a few yards of one of them and under the lee of which the crew were enfely landed. He then went to the other vessel, and attempted the · .	same thing, but a huge wave caught him before he could retreat, and in the presence of hundreds of spectators be was harled round the stern of the vessel and never again seen alive.

	It than about me that there must be many I
*	better ways of getting a rone on board a wrecked vessel, when within 20 or 30 yards of the shore.
	than by throwing a coil against a strong wind, and I suggested a very simple instrument—viz.,
-	a stort cane about two feet long, with a raper
:	strong whipcord at the other. Any man can throw such a thing 40 or 50 yards against a strong wind, and much further it with the wind. Re the directions of the Board of Trade these hardly a month since Christmas, yet within that time we have three of the class doing enough to prove its incorrigibility though it committed no other ain against the law and order of things, as they are during the most of the year. At a moment most inopportune, in a manner ٠.	the most insulting, with professions of fidelity to engagements thus proved to be the most insincere, and under circumstances that render the act one of the most insans, the Emperor Francis Joseph has issued a patent asserting his absolute power by conscription to enrol a vest army in Hungary as part of his dominions.

	He has thereby suddenly, and with an apparent unconsciousness of shame, broken the first and
٠.	most essential promises he has of late been reiterating, to recognize and renovate consti-
